(By telegraph to the Dispatch.) Washington, May 18.—The Inter-State Commerce Commission devoted some time to-day to hearing arguments upon the ap-plication of the Queen and Cresent rail-way system for the permanent suspension of the fourth section of the inter-State commerce law.

John C. Gault, general manager of the system, first addressed the commission. He described the line of the Queen and Crescent roads, pointing out its general proximity to the Mississippi river and other water routes. The system, he said, had considerable business which it would like to retain, and to this end he hoped to obtain permanent relief from water compe-

Chairman Cooley inquired at what points they sought relief. Mr. Guilt replied that they wished to be relieved from this connectition wherever it affected the system. He read a petition prepared by officers of the road setting out the effect of water. the temporary suspension made permanent. It was stated in the paper that the practice of the steamboat line had been to make duly such rates as may be necessary to enable them to secure traffic. The chief ground for asking relief arises from the fact that the practice of the steamboat line had been to make duly such rates as may be necessary to enable them to secure traffic. The chief ground for asking relief arises from the ground for asking rener arises from the fact that the reads desire to participate to a certain extent in this traffic, which they cannot afford to do if they are required to reduce all of their rates in proportion to these necessary to meet water competition. Chairman Cooley asked if, in fixing rates, any account was taken of the effect upon towns, or were they fixed simply in the in-terest of the roads. Something had been said about competition as the reason why the rates should be cut down. Mr. Gault repired that his road had little to do with fixing rates; that was done by the Southern Rail-way Association. He did not wholly approve the system that governed the regulation of these rates. He believed in fixing rates that would be just to all, and said he would rather have a desen thriving towns on his road than large chies. His road was willing and anxious to give the law a fair trial, and only asked to be releved from water competition. That meant the Onio and Mississippi rivers chiefly.

In answer to Commissioner Bragg the speaker explained by illustration his reason for holding that system of fixing the rates followed by the Southern Railway Asso-ciation, which made every local station a competitive point, resulted in very much higher rates, and was characterized in some even if their request was granted his com-pany did not propose to make any local rate between time innall and Atlanta higher than through rates. Coffen was, he said, about the only interest, he thought, which had been favored with special rates. The reads would be glad to include pig-iron in the special arrangement, making the rates dependent upon the market prices of non. This could be done without vio-lating the long-and-short-haul chause. He and not believe to at any special concession was necessary to develop the large lumber notatry of the Souta. Lumber was in rest demand in the North, and business as constantly incressing. Mr. Gault: The management of southern reads has been wise. The system of rates is peculiar to the South. When the country was in poverty, after the war, players had to horrow maney to put in their crops. Large towns made bans, and through that advantage were enabled to out to the trade and avoing the heads. t low rates, Chairman: But you think the time has

Mr. Gault: Where there are no water rates we would not ask for relief. I can't ors did business at a chean rate, the road hould do it as cheaply. I desire to be un-restood that I do not antagonize the petitions put in by other southern railroad

Chairman: The commission does not so inderstand that you have endeavored to sany such thing. Representative Cabell, of Virginia, a cared for the Board of Trade of Danyiii A and made compoint against the Rich hand and Donville rallroad. Since the road had acquired control of the Virginia Midland he said the rates had been greatly advanced, and the interests of the town rulace. The board charged that the Richmond and Danville, the Virginia Mid-land and other western and northern conad, and other western and northern co land, and other western and northern connections have violated the first, third, and other sections of the inter-State law by means of direct and indirect drawbacks in favor of other piaces and against Darville, and by charging other points less for a long haul than was charged to Darville for the sbort hauls.

Requests for a suspension of the fourth section came mainly from railroad corporations, which it was the intention of Conress to curb in the interest of the neanle. gress to curb in the interest of the people. One grant of such claim would be a pre-cedent for further demands, and the law itself, which was reasonably clear and fair, would be convered into a measure for the oppression of those whose rights it was intended to protect.

When Mr. Cabell had concluded it was suggested that his general charges should be put in specific form, so that the commission might deal with them. The hearing was then closed for the day.

POWERS OF THE COMMISSION DEFINED. Washington, May 18.—In reply to an application from the general traffic manager of the Minnesota and Northwestern Railroad Company for a suspension of the fourth section of the inter-State commerce law, Judge Cooley, chairman of the Inter-State Commission, has written him a long traffic thing the powers of the commission. letter defining the powers of the commis-sion in certain cases, and explaining why is must hold his application for some further time under advisement. The salient fea-tures of the letter are as follows: The fourth section of the act to regulate commerce was intended to establish a gen-eral law that more should not be charged for transportation for a shorfer than for a longer haul over the same line in the same direction under croumstances and condi-tions substantially similar. Congress, in passing the act, must be understood to have determined that any incidental injuries that might flow from the enforcement of the general rule would be more than counter-balanced by resulting benefits. The com-mission, of course, does not expect to question the correctness of this determination, but to enforce, so far as it may fall within its duty to do so. The net nevertheless contemptates that there may be cases in which public interest will be subserved by suspending the gene-ral rule so far as to except such cases from ts operation. The commission will not at suspension, but it may be useful to call your attention to a few considerations which are obvious on the face of the law. First, It is obvious that the cases the law contemplates in which the commis-sion is authorized to make orders for suspensions are exceptional cases, and that when only general reasons operate the general taw shall be left to its general course, however serious may be the conthem. The San Antonio Rifles passed through this city to-day en route for Wasbington. It is understood that the Lomax Rifles, of Mobile, and the Vicksburg South-sequences in particular cases and to par-ticular roads and interests. Second. It is also made plain by the act that any order for suspension was in-tended to be based upon an investigation which would satisfy the commission that the case was in fact exceptional and fairly within the intent of the provision made for relief. The jurisdiction of the commission to make orders was evidently meant to be somewhat closely restricted. A vague notion prevails in some quarters that power has been conferred upon the commission to interfere anywhere and for any reasons satisfactory to itself in order to prevent what it may think is likely to be harmful. what it may think is likely to be harmful. But you, of course, indulge in no such baseless notion. The commission must find its authorily in law, and not in its own ideas of right or policy.

Third. It must be assumed that Congress intended the general law, in its main feature, at least, to be the permanent law for the country. It must, therefore, have contemplated that considerable sacrifices would necessarily be submitted to by some parties.

Append (By telegraph to Wasmington, May appointments have be real Land Office: John and Arthur Grabows) and Arthur Grabowsi depredations agents, and interests while the general law was holig established, for the very obvious reason that it would be quite impossible to introduce considerable changes in a branch of law which concerns so intimately the commerce of the country without serious consequences to some private interest. In all such cases incidental injuries are necessarily borne for the general good, and if the legislature misjudges as to what the general good demands it is to be expected that in due time it will provide the remedy.

Judge Cooley then calls aitention to the fact that the first question to confront the commission after its organization was rised under the fourth section of the act. Appeals were made from all parts of the country for relief from the operation of this section on the ground that its enforcement would cause serious injury to private and corporate interests, and even in some cases would result in destruction or bankruptcy.

"In many cases," says Cooley, "the appeals seemed to be made in the belief that The number of cierical and lay delegates at the opening services was large. Divide service began at 10 o'clock A. M. There were in the chancel Right Rev. Francis M. "In many cases," says Cooley, "the apeals seemed to be made in the belief that Whittle, D. D., bishop of the diocese, and Right Rev. A. M. Randolph, assistan bishop; Rev. Dr. Norton, the rector of the probability of injury was of itself suffi-ient to warrant for the commission to in-erfere and grant a relieving order. It is church; and Rev. Messrs. Robb, White, and Harry B. Lee. Rev. Mr. White read the morning service, and Bishops Whittle and Randolph both took part in the service. carcely necessary to say that any such belief s without legal support. The probability or even certainty that injury to corporttions or individuals will result is not by it-self under the act any ground for suspen-sion anywhere of its ordinary operations." After showing that the power given to be commission to gram relief from the op-ration of the fourth section was limited to asses exceptional in their nature, and was not meant to include all cases where the fourth section would work injury, Judge Cooley says that the commission was early confronted by another question—namely, Whether railroads might determine for themselves, but at their peril, whether in any particular case the circumstances and ditions were so far different as to justify whether, on the other hand, it was only upon and in view of such different circumstances and conditions that the commission was empowered to act. Before deciding questions Judge Cooles says the commission feit itself justified, if not compelied, to look beyond the record, and to seek such aid in the construction as might be derived from the study of the condition of things pertaining to the temperature. of things pertaining to the transportation sy he act may undertaken to deal with.

Such an investigation necessarily involved alving a hearing to interested parties, and consequently required time. The commis-sion, however, deemed it wise to grant some temporary orders on an ivestigation to make. This was done in the

From the re-port of the general agent, Dr. Haygood, of Georgis, it appears that $10,000 ha-been disbursed during the past year from the meome of the fund—ar advance of $10,000 upon the disbursementof the year before. His report, which i printed, contains a large amount of stati-tical information in regard to the progresof the schools which have received Slate: aid. Every institution thus beloed must, in addition to other instruction, provide industrial training. It is manifest that this condition, which was thought questionable at first, now meets with almost unanimous approbation. Forty-two schools—most of them training schools for teachers—have them training schools for teachers—have been added during the year in sums varying from $500 to $3,000.

The report of the treasurer shows that the original capital of the fund—$1,000,000—has been slightly augmented and its securities are well invested.

The session of the bazed was devoted to The session of the board was devoted to

NEW YORK BALTIMORE, AND RICE. MOND STOCK EXCHANGES.

Grain, Provisions, Cotton, Tebacos, Turpentine, Rosin, Tar, and Peanut Markets.

[By telegraph to the Dispatch.]

New York, May 18.—There was another burst of activity in the stock market to-day, and under the lead of New England and Missouri Facific material advances were established over the entire list. There were extonsive efforts on the part of the bears to cover their shorts, and in New England something like a squeeze is believed to have taken place in the street. The unusual strength and animation was set down entirely to this cause. Gould shares were prominent, and the general belief is that Gould has taken hold of his specialities for a rise. Foreign buying was somewhat larger to-day, but did not reach a position of importance in the market. There was considerable hammering by room-traders in the forenoon, but it had little offect upon prices, and fater in the day efforts were directed to getting back their stocks. After the first two leaders of the market Union Pacific was the most conspicuous, and targangers with the evention of St. Paul. occur-July ... After the first two leaders of the market Union Pacific was the most conspicuous, and grangers, with the exception of St. Paul, occupied a subordinate position in market. There was a sport in Pacific Mail late in the day upon the closing of the books for the election. There was little special feature among the remainder of the list, though all shared in the general improvement. New England was extremely active after 12 o'clock. The opening was irregular but generally firm, though the differences from last evening's final prices were for slight fractions only. The market was strong from the opening. Coal stocks and grangers were inclined to weakness at first but later recovered their tone. After first hour the market quieted down and prices remained stationary until the afternoon. After that time more animation was shown and a decidedly strong tone developed throughout the list, while New England and Missouri Pacific with a few of the specialties made marked advances. The improvement continued until the
